J'existe

video graphics 3d

The Greek philosopher Heraclitus, who lived over 2500 years ago, coined the expression "panta rei" (everything flows), with which he asserted that in nature nothing is immutable, but everything changes constantly: every living form, animal or vegetable, each element is subject to the inexorable law of change. With this video animation I wanted to represent through a succession of abstract forms in motion the concept of transformation, which obeys inexorably to the passing of time; the video J'existe alludes to the continuous becoming of existence in its various forms and to water as the primary source of life.

The video was made using Adobe After Effects and Ableton Live for the audio track.
