Sara Budzik

Not a grouping of creatures that you come across often. Sara's 'Cornucopia' series might at first seem alarming but once you're past the initial abject response you are tempted to see the calming and sublime beauty of these innocuous creatures. Each ceramic element is individually hand sculpted and texturised then placed in an up-cycled/repurposed frame.

Prices start at £90.00 get in touch via email (sarabudzikmaking@gmail.com) or social media (@sarabudzikmaking) to purchase.

Artist Bio

Trying to change the world one snail at a time...

Is no easy task when your subjects are the marmite of the animal kingdom! Sara is on a one-woman mission to change our view of these unloved inhabitants of our gardens. She believes that if people can start to be kind to slugs and snails, we can save the world entire.

Working in porcelain and stoneware clays using hand-building techniques to create ceramic sculpture suitable for both interior and exterior spaces. Drawing inspiration from her passionate connection to the natural world. Sara works intuitively and playfully with clay creating fun and elegant pieces to reconnect us to our childlike awe and wonder. Reminding us that all life is precious and beautiful, no matter what its form. "Snails and slugs are the embodiment of the fragility of life, they are so vulnerable to our whims." Sara has an eco-conscious practice, recycling, reusing and avoiding plastic as much as possible.
