Ribbon Spirals

Susan Lansdale Contemporary Jewellery

Sterling Silver

I design and hand-craft jewellery from my workshop in rural Leicestershire, taking inspiration from the organic textures and geometric forms found in the natural landscape. I work mainly in sterling silver, using a range of traditional silversmithing techniques. The freeform ribbon spirals in these pieces developed out of earlier work based on the more formal spirals found throughout nature in plants and shells.

Artist Bio

I started making jewellery over seven years ago, initially inspired by courses at the Attenborough Arts Centre in Leicester, followed by further training at New College Nottingham and the Birmingham School of Jewellery. I initially trained as a musician and arts administrator, and enjoyed a busy career running arts and heritage organisations across the UK for more than 30 years, before concentrating on jewellery design and making. However, I still play music in ensembles around the region!
